

DIPLOMACY

Vol.79, May/ Jun. 2023

Contents of Features

- 68 Belarus is subordinate to Russia to protect the Lukashenko regime
Lukashenko seeks backing from Putin, but is faced with the contradiction that Putin aspires the incorporation of Belarus into Russia.
Michitaka Hattori (Hokkaido University)
- 74 The Russo-Georgian War: Lessons from Western non-intervention
When Russia invaded Georgia, the Western countries did not intervene. The 'success story' for Russia led to the invasion of Ukraine.
David Goginashvili (Embassy of Georgia in Tokyo)
- 80 Kazakhstan: The dilemma of war and political reform
How are political reforms being implemented in Kazakhstan amidst the economic difficulties since the invasion of Ukraine?
Masaaki Higashijima (University of Tokyo)
- TREND2023.
- 92 The political decision of the two leaders to revive shuttle diplomacy
Relations between Japan and South Korea have started to improve. Can the two countries improve the relations based on the perception of the North Korean threat?
Tetsuya Hakoda (Asahi Shimbun)
- 99 Dialogue ◎ Aiming to Reinforce Extended Deterrence: Japan-US-South Korea Security cooperation is entering a new phase
As the frameworks between the three countries are reactivated, the question arises as to the nature of the new cooperation posture over US extended nuclear deterrence and economic security.
Junya Nishino (Keio University) and Tsuneo Watanabe (Sasakawa Peace Foundation)
- 110 Tsai Ing-wen's visit to the US: Taiwan's foreign policy strategy and the situation in the Taiwan Strait
China's response to Tsai Ing-wen's visit to the US was surprisingly calm. Using various data, the author deciphers the latest developments in the US, Taiwan and China.
Rira Monma (Takushoku University)
- 118 Background of 'rupture of diplomatic relations with Taiwan' in Central America
China is establishing diplomatic relations with the countries in Central America, where democracy and neoliberalism are in retreat. The next focus for Taiwan will be the change of government in Guatemala next year.
Chihiro Fueta (Komazawa University)
- 122 How long will Myanmar's 'stalemate' last?
The extension of the state of emergency in Myanmar indicates that the military is unable to control the transition of power. A diplomatic approach is also difficult.
Yoshihiro Nakanishi (Kyoto University)
- 128 The Middle East: 20 years after the Iraq War
How did the Iraq War affect Iraq, the Middle East and the US-led post-Cold War international order?
Satoshi Ikeuchi (University of Tokyo)
- 134 Japan's role in ending the war in Ukraine
The author considers the main issues for ending the war in Ukraine and the role Japan should play in this process.
Higashi Daisaku (Sophia University)
- 140 Sudan's democratic revolution: The Process of setbacks-Why did the 'two armies' clash?
The author describes how Sudan's democratisation, which was underway after the 2019 revolution, collapsed as a result of a clash between two military organisations that supported and then overthrew the dictatorship.
Yuko Tobinai (Morioka University)

Special Feature:

The G7 Hiroshima Summit

6 Building order in solidarity with developing and emerging countries

The support and cooperation of developing and emerging countries is essential for continued support to Ukraine. What role can Japan, which has faced all countries on an equal footing, play after the summit?

Shin'ichi Kitaoka (University of Tokyo)

12 The Presidency, Japan making the most of 'face-to-face diplomacy' - the Global South played a leading role in the shadows

The key word for rallying countries with different values - not democracy, but 'rule of law'. The author, who interviewed the participants at the event, gives a breathtaking account of face-to-face diplomacy.

Keiko Iizuka (Yomiuri Shimbun)

16 Thinking about nuclear issues in Hiroshima

The wish for nuclear abolition in the atomic bombed city of Hiroshima and the harsh reality in Ukraine. How did the Hiroshima Vision position the two and what message did it send out?

Hideaki Miyama (Hiroshima Television Corporation)

22 Differences in perceptions of China between the US and Europe

In order to resolve diverse issues, the G7 needs to shift to a cooperative line with the international community including China.

Toru Yoshida (Doshisha University)

26 G7 Summit: How the world sees it

Russia Hitoshi Omae (Mainichi Newspapers)

China Seiichiro Takeuchi (Yomiuri Shimbun)

Taiwan Koichiro Ishida (Asahi Shimbun)

Korea Yoshiyuki Aoki (NHK)

India Tomomi Asano (Yomiuri Shimbun)

Indonesia Koya Jibiki (Nikkei)

Brazil Hidetake Miyamoto (Nikkei)

FOCUS ☉How the war in Ukraine has changed neighbouring countries

40 'Downfall' of Europe as a result of the war in Ukraine

Since the end of the Cold War, Europe has led the way in regional peace and stability, but this has collapsed with the war in Ukraine. Can Europe find a new role in supporting Ukraine?

Atsuko Higashino (University of Tsukuba)

44 Poland's growing presence in Europe's eastern shift

The author argues for stronger Japan-Poland relations in light of Poland's changing external relations and the shift of Europe's centre of gravity to the east, where it is at the forefront of support for Ukraine.

Akio Miyajima (Ambassador of Japan to Poland)

50 Finland: The choice to join NATO

Why did Finland change its policy of neutrality and join NATO? The background of the choice was opposition to Russia, which poses a threat to Finland.

Tapio Juntunen (Tampere University)

56 Moldova with unrecognised state 'Transdniestria'

Russia is focusing on Transdniestria as a 'corridor' for the invasion of Ukraine. Can the framework of the neighbouring countries '5+2' maintain peace?

Hideya Matsuzaki (Tsuda University)

62 From isolation to cooperation - Turkey's Erdoğan diplomacy

The author provides an overview of the foreign policy of the Erdoğan Administration, which aims to mediate between Russia and Ukraine, and analyses the characteristics of its foreign policy since it came to power.

Kohei Imai (Institute of Developing Economies, JETRO)